Affina Organisation Development (AOD)

The evidence is clear. There are big differences in productivity, innovation, staff well-being and staff engagement between organisations that have GOOD TEAM WORKING and those that don’t.

That’s why our team tools, built from Professor Michael West’s inspirational research, are being used to improve performance across health and social care. We provide robust, affordable and sustainable solutions, ranging from a simple team diagnostic to award-winning executive team coaching.

So, let’s talk about your teams and how you can develop their potential using tools they will value and enjoy. AOD is part of the Skills for Care Group. We are recognised as the national specialists in team-based working.

Here at FutureLearn, our purpose is to transform access to education. We do that by partnering with over a quarter of the world’s top universities to support over 10 million learners across the globe to develop skills and achieve their personal and professional goals. We’re a leading social learning platform founded in December 2012 by The Open University and are now jointly owned by The Open University and The SEEK Group.

We use design, technology and partnerships to create enjoyable, credible and flexible short online courses and microcredentials, as well as undergraduate and postgraduate degrees. In addition to top universities, we also partner with leading organisations such as Public Health England (PHE), NHS Employers, NHS Leadership Academy and Health Education England (HEE). At FutureLearn our healthcare vision is to work alongside our partners to develop learning pathways which address skills gaps and areas of greatest global need.

As part of NHS England and NHS Improvement, our philosophy is simple – great leadership development improves leadership behaviours and skills. Better leadership leads to better patient care, experience and outcomes.

Our purpose is to work with our partners to develop outstanding leadership across the NHS to have a direct impact on patient care. We offer a range of tools, models, programmes and expertise to support individuals, organisations and local partners to develop leaders, celebrating and sharing where outstanding leadership makes a real difference.
