

AWARD: Health sustainability leader of the year

This award will recognise individuals at a senior level - and those operating alongside senior leadership - who are shaping the future and making the principles and values of sustainability central to their organisation and their wider community at the highest levels.

This award is looking for an inspiring leader who has also helped to make the case for the accelerated development of a sustainable health and care economy. Economic, social and environmental sustainability should feature prominently in all core activities going beyond standard practice and compliance.

Applications should provide evidence of a clear high-level strategic approach and strong stakeholder engagement - as well as evidence of leadership to create change at a significant level and breadth.
