

Conclusion

The information and questions provided in this document should provide comprehensive support to NHS organisations in their commissioning and procurement of OH services for staff.

An improved OH service for NHS staff is a step towards a healthy workforce that can remain in work and deliver the best possible care to patients.

For further information about occupational health services more generally, please see our dedicated web page or the NHS Health at Work website.